Job Match-Up Task

Can you match up the GCHQ job titles with their job descriptions?

Cyber Security Analyst	They gather valuable information from different places and use it to help with decisions about keeping the country safe.
Cryptographer	They search for signs of danger in digital spaces, such as suspicious online activity or software that could cause harm.
Data Analyst	They work to stop online attacks and make sure important digital systems are protected from people who shouldn't access them.
Intelligence Officer	They design and repair technology systems to make sure they're protected from people trying to break into them.
Software Developer	They manage and monitor computer networks to ensure they are running smoothly and remain secure.
Security Engineer	Their job is to design secret codes and also help figure out hidden messages created by others.
Linguist	They examine large amounts of information to discover trends and important details that help protect the country.
Network Engineer	They translate conversations and documents in foreign languages and use their knowledge of culture and context to help understand what's happening in other countries.
Threat Analyst	They create programs that help their organization handle tasks, like identifying online threats or managing information securely.

GCHQ