Director GCHQ discusses how ‘whole of cyber’ approach is disrupting criminals

Director GCHQ Sir Jeremy Fleming was speaking at CyberUK 2022, the Government’s flagship cyber security conference

Speaking at CyberUK 2022 in Newport, Wales, Sir Jeremy Fleming has outlined how GCHQ is combining defensive and offensive cyber capabilities to disrupt criminal activity on an "immense scale". He highlighted how GCHQ's National Cyber Security Centre (NCSC) is protecting the digital homeland, including the Active Cyber Defence programme which took down more than 2.7million online scams last year, and set out for the first time how the National Cyber Force (NCF) – a joint GCHQ and MoD partnership – has worked alongside the NCSC and law enforcement to disrupt criminal cyber gangs.

Click here to read the speech in full.

PUBLISHED

10 May 2022

NEWS TYPE

General news